Since 2000, Rocky Mountain Soap Company has been cleaning up western Canada with a range of bath and body soaps as pure and natural as the proverbial mountain snow.

The Canmore-based retailer, which operates 10 outlets in Alberta, B.C. and Manitoba, takes its purity mission seriously. It compiled a list of “Red List” toxic that will never be used in Rocky Mountain products. This is matched by a “Green List” of natural ingredients (beeswax, essential oils, etc.) that has received their seal of approval. This care for all things good-for-you extends throughout the store design to avoid building materials that are bad for the environment.
